High-Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development 2023

10-19 July | New York

Principle-led, evidence-based development co-operation can catalyze progress on the SDGs.

- Development co-operation that is country-owned, focused on results, inclusive, and transparent and mutually accountable – the four principles of development effectiveness – can accelerate the achievement of all SDGs.
- With overlapping challenges and crises undermining development progress, we must strengthen political momentum on effective development co-operation if we are to reach the SDGs by the 2030 deadline.

The Global Partnership empowers country-level actors to identify and tackle challenges for better development co-operation.

- The new monitoring exercise provides fresh evidence on country-specific challenges that delay development progress and need to be tackled to boost the effectiveness of development co-operation.
- As the official source of data for three of the SDG targets (SDG 5.c, SDG 17.15 and SDG 17.16) and evidence on implementation of effectiveness commitments, the Global Partnership monitoring drives collective accountability and enhances countries' Voluntary National Reviews (VNRs) with insights on opportunities for accelerating SDG implementation.

By bringing diverse development actors together through a principle-led approach, the Global Partnership fosters trust and policy action in countries.

- Inclusive country dialogues between governments and other development actors informed by the monitoring results spur action towards development co-operation strategies and policies in line with country priorities for better development results that leave no one behind.
- Linking these country dialogues with countries' VNR preparations can enhance multi-stakeholder participation in VNR processes and the quality of the VNRs.
